

IN TROUBLE ON BIGAMY CHARGE

Leonard Maples and Mrs. Rose Gullett Have Been Arrested In Louisville.

DEFENDANTS PLACED IN JAIL

At Jeffersonville.—Mrs. Effie Maples, of Medora, Claims Man is Her Husband.

Leonard Maples and Mrs. Rose Gullett, of this county, are reported in trouble at Jeffersonville, a charge of bigamy having been preferred against them by Mrs. Effie Maples, of Medora. She charges that Maples without securing a legal separation from her, remarried.

The news reached Medora recently that Maples and Mrs. Gullett had been married and were living at Jeffersonville. The latter part of last week Medora people raised money by subscription to enable Mrs. Maples to go to Jeffersonville and investigate the matter and institute proceedings. The money was given to her and she went to Jeffersonville Saturday but has since returned. Her husband has been absent from Medora for some time.

A Seymour man who knows all the parties states that both Maples and Mrs. Gullett were in Seymour some time ago.

Gullett and his wife came to Jackson from Washington county and lived at different places in the west part of the county. They separated three or four years ago and later she filed suit for divorce, charging cruel and inhuman treatment and failure to provide. The case was heard in the Jackson circuit court and the divorce was refused.

The Louisville Courier Journal this morning contained the following regarding the arrest of Maples and Mrs. Gullett:

When Leonard Maples and Mrs. Rose Gullett, who were arrested in Louisville Saturday night and turned over to Capt. Mike A. Wall, appeared in the Jeffersonville City Court yesterday morning, to answer before Magistrate James S. Keigwin to a charge of bigamy, they pleaded not guilty. They were represented by Joseph H. Warder and were ready for trial, but the State asked for a continuance because of the absence of Mrs. Effie Maples, who swore out the complaint against her husband and his companion. Next Monday was set as the time for a hearing. The defendants went back to jail.

In the complaint the names of the defendants are given as they are commonly known, but not so in the marriage license, which, it is alleged, was issued to them. The marriage took place, it is alleged, on February 27, last, Magistrate Keigwin officiating. An inspection of the application showed that the letter "Q," which is a signal to indicate secret marriages, was missing. It was also found that the marriage had been published along with others which took place the same day. Not the slightest effort had been made to prevent the world learning of the wedding. The principals of both claimed to be from Louisville.

The application bears the name of William L. Maples. To the question—whether the applicant had ever been married before the answer given was no. The name of the bride was given as Margaret R. Gullett. To the question concerning any former marriage the application states that her first husband is dead, but the date of his death was not given.

It is claimed that Maples has a wife, Effie Maples, and three children, living at Medora, Jackson county, Ind. The bride, it is alleged, has a husband, John Gullett, and two children, at Sanburn, Knox county, Ind. The complainant says she was married to Maples as Miss Effie Cave, in 1903, at Medora. Her marriage certificate is in the hands of Magistrate Keigwin. No attempt has been made by either to deny the Jeffersonville marriage and Mrs. Gullett says she will not give Maples up.

Died in Texas.

The message received here Monday afternoon from Mrs. C. S. Milburn at San Antonio, Texas, stating that her daughter, Miss Helen Milburn, was in a critical condition, was followed by another message in the evening. The latter brought the sad news that Miss Milburn had died at 2 o'clock.

Last September Mrs. Milburn and two daughters, Misses Dora and Helen, went to Texas for the benefit of the latter's health and for a time the climate agreed with her. Monday morning, however, she was taken much worse and continued to sink until her death.

Miss Milburn was 19 years of age, having been born Sept. 2, 1891. Besides her parents Mr. and Mrs. Charles S. Milburn, one sister and two brothers survive.

The young lady was of a very pleasant disposition and was popular in Seymour. Death coming when life was the sweetest, brings deep sorrow not only in her home, but to her many friends.

Ray Milburn, who received the message from his mother, was unable to locate his father, who is a traveling salesman, last night. Mr. Milburn was expected to reach Bedford today where a message was sent to await his arrival.

The remains will be brought to this city for burial but will not arrive before Friday. The time of the funeral will be announced later.

Gave Entertainment.

The young people's society of the German Lutheran church gave an excellent entertainment last night at the church. The program which included recitations, dialogues and music, was enjoyed by a large audience.

Rainbow Social.

The Epworth League of the Methodist church will give a rainbow social Thursday evening at the parsonage. The League and friends are invited.

Order From Alaska.

John Briner, of Redding township, this week received an order from a man in Alaska for two settings of Black Minorca eggs.

A. F. Griffith, of Milford, Ind., who is known all over the country as a mathematical wonder, was in Seymour today. He was enroute home from the Pacific coast where he has been on a tour for a lyceum bureau.

CIVIC LEAGUE
HELD MEETING

At Library Monday Afternoon and Appointed Members of Nine Committees.

WELL KNOWN WOMEN CHOSEN

People Are Urged to Join in Movement Which the League Represents.

An enthusiastic meeting of the Women's Civic League was held Monday afternoon at the Library. The league is now well organized and is prepared for active work.

At the meeting Monday the following committees were appointed:

Park—Mrs. Mark Williams, Mrs. S. A. Barnes, Mrs. N. Kaufman, Mrs. Whitmer, Mrs. Will Clark.

Streets—Mrs. Allen Swope, Mrs. C. D. Hopewell, Mrs. W. A. Wylie.

Alleys—Mrs. L. A. Ebner, Mrs. J. J. Rottman, Mrs. Byford Cunningham.

Yards—Mrs. Harry Miller, Mrs. G. H. Anderson, Mrs. Lena Lauster.

Bill Boards and Posters—Mrs. Gus Cordes, Mrs. C. W. Williams, Mrs. Elmer Bollinger.

Press—Mrs. M. C. Carpenter, Mrs. Pfaffenberger, Mrs. H. R. Booch.

Curfew—Mrs. Frank Voss, Mrs. U. F. Lewis, Mrs. Charles Naylor.

Prizes—Mrs. Ben Schneck, Mrs. H. R. Booch, Miss Myrtle Huckleberry, Mrs. W. F. Pfaffenberger, Mrs. C. D. Hopewell, Mrs. U. F. Lewis.

These committees will be heard from through the press regarding plans. In regard to the organization, one of the officers says: It is urged that all the people of Seymour co-operate in this work. There is no spirit of antagonism in any respect in this movement. The tenor of each meeting has been simply for the loving, helpful co-operation in improving our beautiful little city. We will welcome any woman who wishes to join us. The dues of twenty-five cents while small, will help but what we especially want is your advice and assistance. But whether a member of the organization or not we wish that all of us, men, women and children, may work in harmony for our own good as citizens.

Attending Synod.

H. T. Lange, of the German Lutheran school, was elected a delegate from the Jackson county district to the Delegate Synod at St. Louis and left for the latter city today. The Synod is now in session and the meeting will continue until May 20. There will be no school in Mr. Lange's room until May 22. Rev. E. H. Eggers, of this city, is also attending the St. Louis meeting.

Special at Majestic.

The Majestic had extra good crowds out last night to see Oliver and Helman in their vaudeville acts and all were highly pleased. See our ad for tonight's performance.

M. W. A. Team Attention.

The M. W. A. Team will meet at 8 o'clock sharp Wednesday evening. CAPT. CARTER.

DIED.

WHITE.—Mrs. Mary White, age 90 years, died Monday at her home in Summittville after a brief illness. Several children survive. The late J. O. White of this city was a son. The funeral services will be held from the residence Wednesday. Mrs. J. O. White and daughter, Mrs. Chester Reed, left Monday afternoon to attend the funeral.

FIRST VISIT

To Seymour In Thirty-six Years. Many Changes.

M. Ruddick, of Healdsburg, Cal., is in Seymour visiting friends and relatives. Mr. Ruddick formerly lived in the country near Seymour. He left here for California in April thirty-six years ago, and this is his first visit since, to his old home. Since leaving here, he has been in many of the western states. He says Seymour has taken on many changes since he lived here, for a greater portion of the present city was then fields and woods, but it is now a beautiful little city. One place looks natural to him and that is where Mr. Bevins' store now is. At the time he left, it was Uncle Peter Carter's store. Mr. Ruddick will spend some time here before returning to his home in the west.

To Tear Down Old Building.

E. M. Moore of Southport, owner of the old Arlington hotel, was in Seymour Monday. He stated that the old building will be torn down in a few days and the lumber and other materials will be used in the erection of two new five room houses. They will be built in the Peters addition. The option on the hotel site given the government for a federal building site, is still in effect.

For Club Rooms.

The Eagles have leased the rooms on the second floor over Dehler's store and will use them for club rooms. They are being repapered and decorated and pool and billiard tables will be put in. The Eagles have in the past used the third floor of this building for a lodge hall, but they will now have both the second and third floors. The lodge is in a prosperous condition.

Tuesday Club.

The Tuesday Club met this afternoon with Mrs. Brown on East Third street. The following is the program:

The Spanish Cortez. Its membership and Authority. Mrs. Williams The Revolution of 1829. Mrs. Faulkner Loss of the Spanish American Colonies. Mrs. Groub Schools in Spain. Mrs. Hadley

Attention, Rebekahs!

The Rebekahs will meet at the hall Monday night for drill practice. All members are requested to be present. Erma Hancock, N. G. Esther Elliott, Sec'y.

Open All Summer.

We will be open the entire summer to prepare people for the great demand there is for office help and commercial teachers. Seymour Business College, Seymour, Ind.

Meeting.

MERCHANTS WILL

For Three Days That Will Bring Everybody to Seymour to Trade.

RAILROAD FARES TO BE PAID.

Big Combination But to Lower Prices Instead of to Raise Them.

A movement is on foot and practically all arrangements have been made for a big combination sale in Seymour next week and the event promises to surpass anything of a like nature ever pulled off in this section of the country. The merchants have united in an effort to draw trade from every town and every nook and corner of the rural districts within a radius of twenty miles around the city and from the inducements they are going to make to all persons who have anything at all to buy, we feel safe in predicting that Thursday, Friday and Saturday of next week will be the three busiest days Seymour has ever experienced.

Railroad fares are to be refunded to all out-of-town customers and while this is a pretty fair inducement within itself, yet it is only a very small consideration when compared with the bargains to be offered by the merchants in every line of trade.

Many wonder why the merchants of Seymour have united in a movement of this kind, but the reason is simple when explained. The idea was first conceived and it might be said promoted by the Republican. Each merchant was requested to make a cut in prices for three days, Thursday, Friday and Saturday, May 18, 19 and 20 and at the same time agree to refund the fares to all out-of-town customers on these three days. The plan met with the approval of nearly every merchant and as a result it will mean the biggest trading opportunity ever known to Seymour. Of course it has created competition among the merchants and each will try and undersell the other during this sale. Cost will have nothing to do with the selling price—it is now just a matter of getting rid of the goods.

But this is all the better for the people who have to buy and as stated above, Thursday, Friday and Saturday of next week, will be a great opportunity to lay in a spring and summer's supply of merchandise at ridiculously low prices.

Watch for the big announcement of this big combination sale which is now being printed by the Republican. Talk about bargains and mail order house prices—there will be nothing to it.

The Ebner Ice and Cold Storage Co. have on hand an ample supply of Lime-Sulphur solution, which they are offering at a low price in order to encourage the spraying of apple orchards and other fruits. For prices inquire at their office at the Ice Plant.

What Shall We Do With Our Old?

If the churches refuse to call pastors who are over fifty; if hospitals and medical colleges dismiss physicians at sixty; if manufacturing concerns turn adrift experienced men who have grown gray in their service, although still hale and hearty, rich in experience; if other great corporations refuse to hire new men over thirty-five or forty simply because at these ages men are supposed to reach the point of diminishing returns and no longer to be able to adapt themselves to new conditions—if in nearly all vocations men who show signs of age must step aside for the young men, then indeed may we ask, what shall we do with our old men and women, our fathers and mothers who are still obliged to earn a living?—(Orison Ewert Marden in "Success Magazine.")

RAN AWAY WITH THEIR WAR WAGON

Insurrectos Take Bit In Their Teeth.

AN ATTACK ON JUAREZ

Peace Negotiations Are Rudely Interrupted.

MADERO'S ORDERS DISOBEYED

While Rebel Leader Was Talking Peace His Men Began Attack.

El Paso, Tex., May 9.—In the city of Juarez last night the hardest battle of the Mexican insurrection was fought.
Francisco I. Madero's insurrectos took the bit in their teeth and ran away with the war wagon. While Madero was discussing peace plans with the Mexican and insurrecto commissioners and go-betweens, the advance guard of the insurrecto army and the outposts of the federals mixed it up in front of the El Paso union station, on the Mexican side of the river.

First a few shots were fired and then the fighting became general, until at least 600 insurrectos invaded Juarez.

Madero and Navarro, commanding their respective forces of insurrectos and federals, were in conference about an armistice pending a meeting of the peace commissioners when the battle opened. They were conducting their conversation over the telephone. The fighting was going on between them.
They attempted an armistice, but the insurrectos refused to quit.

Evidence of Lax Discipline.

Madero sent the first messenger with a flag to tell his men to stop.
They shot at their own chief's messenger. Madero protested vigorously that it was not a general assault, but gradually his men continued working their way to the front until their numbers grew as gradually the federals worked their way back into town. During the fighting bullets fell thick in El Paso and hit houses all over town, in the business section and the residence section. Three persons were killed in El Paso, two Americans and a Mexican, and six were wounded, four Americans, one a woman, and one Mexican.
All were hit by high-power rifle shots from federal hands, as the insurrecto bullets were directed away from El Paso and the reply fire of the federals was in the direction of El Paso. At least fifty El Paso houses were struck.
Insurrecto chiefs declare that drunken
Mexican volunteers opened the fight.
General Navarro of the federals says the insurrectos opened it. Neither side had the sanction of their officers to start the fight.

It is known that there are from ten to twenty-five dead in the city of Juarez, and anywhere from 50 to 100 wounded. There are no doctors. All citizens of the Mexican town left the place and the telephones were silent when called from the El Paso side of the river. The insurrectos occupy the houses on the outskirts of Juarez, from the Mexican end of the Santa Fe street bridge, which the president of the United States and the president of Mexico crossed to pay visits to each other two years ago, around the town on the northwest and west. The federals retired to the strongholds inside the city and fired with rifles and machine guns. Explosive bullets were used on both sides. Wounds of the dead and injured prove this, also the peculiar sounds of the bullets.

The insurrectos used their two home-made cannon, but did absolutely no damage. The federals used field guns and howitzers and threw explosive shells in the direction of the rebels.

During the thick of the battle Madero left his headquarters and went to the front and ineffectually tried to turn his men back and stop the fight.
It is thought in El Paso among army men that this fight will put at rest all peace negotiations, proving as it does the inability of Madero to control his men.

Another Town in Danger.

San Diego, Cal., May 9.—Federals and rebels are fighting at Tia Juana after a skirmish five miles from that place. The defense of the town is stubborn, but the rebels have steadily gained ground and the capture of the place seems certain. There are only 100 of the federals defending the town.

Durango Also Attacked.

Guadalajara, May 9.—Luis Moya, with 500 men, attacked the city of Durango and it is expected that he will take the place, as it is defended by a small force.

Margaret Anglin, the actress, has been married to Howard Hull, a magazine man, at New York.

IT HAS A POOR SHOW OF PASSING SENATE

House Free List Bill Sees Breakers Ahead.

Washington, May 9.—The house passed the free list bill by a vote of 236 to 109. Twenty-four Republicans and Representative Berger, the Milwaukee Socialist, voted for the bill, which now goes to the senate. Even Democratic leaders admit there is not much hope for it in that body. It is thought that the bill will be pigeon-holed in committee in the senate. The bill cuts the revenues of the government by an amount estimated all the way from $10,000,000 to $50,000,000, the former being Democratic and the latter Republican figures.

The bill as passed transfers to the free list agricultural implements, cotton bagging, hoop iron, wire for balling hay, straw and other agricultural products; certain classes of leather used in boots and shoes; boots and shoes, barbed fence wire, wire rods;
fresh meats of all kinds; buckwheat,
cornmeal, wheat flour and semolina, rye flour, bran, middlings and other offals of grain; timber; sewing machines, and all parts thereof, and salt.

CONCERNED OVER MEXICAN MUDDLE

New Complications Not Pleading to Washington.

OFFICIALS LESS OPTIMISTIC

The Announcement of President Diaz to Resign Has a String to It That Renders It Worthless, and Madero's Loss of Control of His Rebel Army Creates Another Disturbing Situation on the Border.

Washington, May 9.—When they learned the details of President Diaz's promise to resign, officers of the United States government were disappointed. When the brief bulletins of his intention to give up office were received here the authorities were confident that his voluntary retirement would tend to clear up the situation. When it was learned, however, from the more complete accounts of the Diaz manifesto that the aged president's resignation was not only conditional upon the re-establishment of peace, but was also to be submitted only when Diaz himself was satisfied that permanent peace prevailed, the United States officials became less optimistic. Under such conditions it was said President Diaz's intention to resign amounts to nothing more than an indefinite promise, made apparently for the purpose of throwing the responsibility for a continuance of the revolution upon the insurgents. While the insurgent representatives here at first believed that Diaz was sincere in his reported intention to resign when more complete details reached Washington of his announced intention to retire from public life, they came to the conclusion that his announcement will have little if any effect on the situation. The Mexican government insists that the resignation of Diaz was not a concession to the demands of the insurgents. In fact, they contend that the demand of the revolutionists for the simultaneous resignation of President Diaz and Vice President Corral was flatly refused.

The fact that an attack on Juarez was precipitated by the insurgents after General Madero had announced his intention of withdrawing from the border to march on Mexico City, is accepted here as an indication of lax discipline if not absolute disobedience of minor officers. The announcement of his purpose of withdrawing from the border and marching on Mexico was regarded as one of the most important strategic moves that he could make. It would take the scene of fighting from the border and prevent complications with the United States due to firing across the international line. From a military point of view a march upon Mexico City would, it is thought by army experts here, considerably strengthen his position. Madero would march his army through country which is already affected by the revolution and he would run no risk of meeting a strong force of federals until his arrival at Mexico. In addition he would gain many recruits. The distance from Juarez to Mexico City is about 1,200 miles and would be a difficult march. Upon his arrival in the vicinity of Mexico City, it was explained here, Madero would be in a commanding position. He could join forces with insurgent armies from other parts of Mexico and would be able to besiege the capital with a fair chance of forcing the government to surrender. An attack on the capital would be difficult because it is on high ground and could easily be defended by a small force armed with field artillery, but it could be invested, the military experts say, and could be starved into surrender.

The firing on Juarez has led to considerable doubt as to whether Madero himself is in control of the insurgents. If he is not, the retirement of Diaz, it is pointed out, would lead to confusion and disorder worse than now prevails in that country.

OTHER BATTLES

Determined Attacks Made Upon Both Saltillo and Torreon.

Laredo, Tex., May 9.—Fights between the federals and insurgents are waging at both Saltillo and Torreon in the southern part of Coahuila. A brief telegram from Saltillo states that the attacks on the two towns began Monday afternoon almost at the same hour as the attack by Madero's army upon Juarez.

One federal officer and sixteen men had been killed at Saltillo up to the hour of the sending of the message, and over the single wire still left open to Torreon report had come to Saltillo that twenty federal dead had been counted two hours after the fight began there. There was no way, the sender of the telegram in Saltillo said, of knowing what the insurgent loss, if any, had been in either city.

BOOKS FINALLY GAVE UP SECRET

Bank Teller Could No Longer Cover Shortage.

"I WENT MONEY MAD," HE SAID

When Confronted With a Shortage of More Than $118,850 in His Accounts, Julius W. Hopkins, Teller of the First National Bank of Cleveland, Admitted His Peculations—He Had "Worked" Mutilated Bill Account.

Cleveland, O., May 9.—After confessing to having defaulted to the extent of $118,850, Julius W. Hopkins, money mad, paying teller of the First National bank, one of the most trusted of this bank's staff of employees, was arrested. He was placed in the county jail in default of bail. The bank officials declare the bank will not suffer, the loss being fully covered by a blanket guaranty policy. According to the bank officials Hopkins took money from the packages of currency sent the bank by the treasury department in Washington in return for mutilated bills. He covered up the transactions until recently, when he was forced to fall back on his books to conceal the thefts. The defalcation was then uncovered by the bank examiner.

"I went money mad," declared Hopkins shortly after he was placed under arrest. He was the highest salaried paying teller in Cleveland, and had been with the bank since its organization. Six months ago his wife died and he has a son in a sanitarium in North Carolina. The federal grand jury will act upon his case.

"I have done wrong, and I am willing to pay the penalty," Hopkins said.

They Increase Their Gifts.

Sullivan, Ind., May 9.—President O. B. Whitaker of Union Christian college, at Merom, has announced the gift to the college of a $16,000 farm in Posey county from Mr. and Mrs. Levi J. Wilkinson, making a total of $10,000 they have given to the institution.

Horses Perish in Flames.

Elbyville, Ind., May 9.—The large barn on the farm of John Landwerlin, four miles north of town, burned to the ground. Five head of horses perished, and 1,800 bushels of corn and valuable farming implements were destroyed.

Head Cut Off by Train.

Wabash, Ind., May 9.—Michael O'Brien, an employee of the Big Four, fell beneath a freight train and his head was severed. He obtained work in the shops two weeks ago and no relatives are known.

Fall From Tree Kills Girl.

Valparaiso, Ind., May 9.—Lillian Marshall, aged nine, fell from a tree in which she was hunting bird's eggs and her skull was fractured.

IS THERE METHOD IN THE SENATE'S DELAY?

Minority In Upper House Beginning to Wonder.

Washington, May 9.—The senate has done practically nothing with the important measures that have already come over from the house. The senate took a full month to reorganize, and since then has met only twice a week. Some of the senate Democrats are beginning to suspect that there is a plan on the part of the Republicans to delay action on everything except possibly reciprocity, with a view to forcing an adjournment more easily when the hot weather hits the national capital.

Made Deadly Noose From Clothing.
Indianapolis, May 9.—Taking advantage of the momentary absence of attendants from her room, Mrs. Lillian Stacey, an inmate of the Central hospital for the insane, hanged herself from a transom in the bathroom in the woman's building. She used a rope made from her own clothing.

MEMORIAL DAY ORDER

Issued By the State Commander of Grand Army.

A Memorial day order just issued by Alexander P. Asbury, department commander of the Indiana G. A. R., protests against the growing tendency to disregard the day set aside by the veterans in memory of the soldier dead. He urges that no grave be neglected and that the frivolity that has marked past occasions of the kind be done away with. In the order Commander Asbury says: "We deplore the desecration by the immoral and unthinking, who enjoy the blessings of our noble dead secured to them, and hope to see this element controlled by law who so disregard its sacredness by making it a day of frivolity and abandon."

"It is well that on this, the forty-third anniversary of the founding of this day by the Grand Army, that we lay aside our work, and together with our wives, our sons, our daughters and our grandchildren and friends gather around the sleeping dust of our beloved comrades, bedew their graves with our tears, strew them with flowers of memory of not only what they were, but what they did to keep our flag in the sky, that for which it stands should not perish from the earth. As we scatter flowers on the graves of our comrades, let us not forget the faithful wife who walked so long by our side, who has finished life's work, nor the gray-haired father and the loving, trusting mother who gave these sons to their country when every day was one of carnage and every hour was an hour of death. But they died not in vain.

"Post commanders, we urge upon you early to arrange your committees so that no grave of a comrade shall be neglected and none forgotten. Feeble though many of us now are, we have patriotic sons who have banded together to stand with outstretched arms to help us ere our sun goes down. Welcome them to this service."

LEARN TO LAUGH.
A good laugh is the finest tonic that we can have, and if it happens to be at ourselves—it well, so much the better. Once we can laugh at our disappointment that particular grievance takes wings and flies away, leaving us calm and unruffled to face the next. The man who enjoys a good laugh every day will be young at eighty.

THE CIVIL WAR FIFTY YEARS AGO

General Review of the Four Years' Struggle. First of a Series of Articles Which From Week to Week Will Tell the Story of the Great Conflict In Celebration of the Semi-Centennial of Events as They Took Place

By JAMES A. EDGERTON.
[Copyright by American Press Association, 1911.]

It is a fitting suggestion that the fiftieth anniversary of the civil war should be a celebration of peace. It is to be hoped that none of the hatred or rancor of a half century ago will enter into the event. The nation has never been so firmly united as now. Out of the ashes of the old south a new south has sprung. Factories dot her pleasant lands; her cities are growing with the same marvelous swiftness as those of the north and west, and everywhere she is keeping pace with the material, political and intellectual progress of the whole nation.

The severity of the war itself was one of the contributing causes to this happy outcome. Each side tested the metal of the other and learned to respect the other. The contest was fought to such a complete finish that nothing like it can ever again occur in our history. The extraordinary exertion then called forth begot an energy that has since made for national progress. Thus was taught an important lesson in democracy. In that supreme conflict we had to depend upon ourselves, thus developing our own inherent powers, which when the war was over could be turned into the avenues of material advancement.

A man admires a brave and honorable foe. Frequently when two manly men have a misunderstanding and fight it out they become the best of friends. They have tried each other, and henceforth their affection is founded on the rock of mutual esteem. It is even so with the north and south. The veterans on both sides can meet, take each other by the hand and say, "Well, it was a good fight." After all, both armies were made up of Americans, and each of us can be loyal to the memory of his own side and yet feel a glow in thinking of the bravery of the other. In the result the victor had no cause for undue pride or the vanquished for shame. Today it is safe to say that not one southerner in ten thousand would have the result different.

"Let Us Have Peace."

Something of this spirit animated Lincoln in the beautiful second inaugural address and stirred Grant when he said, "Let us have peace." And we have peace as wide as the nation and as deep as the hearts of the people, peace so profound that never again can we have conflict, at least of that kind. In this spirit let us remember the struggle and let no word fall that will wound the sensibilities of either side. This is the way big and brave men remember. Only weak or malignant natures seek to relight the ashes of a dead hate.

The nation is one. As it was in the days of the Revolution and of 1812, so it is now. As a husband and wife, once estranged, are reunited over the grave of a dead child, so are we reunited over the graves of fifty years ago. Without abating one jot of our convictions as to the right or wrong of the conflict we all of us know that peace and concord are right for today. And in recalling the struggle let us include all that is brave and noble on both sides, now the common heritage of a united country. Sorrow is democratic. Grief is not factional. Let our verbal flowers be like the flowers of nature, knowing no section, ceasing at no imaginary line.

They banish our anger forever
When they laurel the graves of our dead.

That is the true spirit. In the broader sense their dead are also our dead, and this is true in whichever section we happen to live, for this is a national celebration.

On the Battlefield of Nashville.

Several years ago I attended the Nashville exposition and while there accompanied a party of distinguished men to the scene of the battle fought near that city. In the party were two United States senators, one from the north, the other from the south. Both had participated in the battle, the northerner as a private, the southerner as a general. During the trip each pointed out the ground that he had fought over and told of the struggle in a way to bring it to life before the eyes. The two were at the time voting on the same side in the senate and were warm friends. To my own mind the incident threw a revealing light upon the stupendous change that had come over the country.

Such a scene would scarcely be possible in any other land on earth. The beauty of it was that the incident typified a thousand others which have occurred in meetings between the blue and the gray. There is no pretense in the reconciliation. These strong men who offered their lives in battling against each other would now as quickly face death to support each other. Indeed, they did as much in the Spanish war. The south was even more eager to enlist than the north. Sincerely and wholeheartedly the two sections are reunited. This fact alone is enough to inspire the heart with supreme faith in democracy.

The civil war began with the firing on Fort Sumter April 12, 1861; it practically ended at Appomattox April 9, 1865, just four years later lacking three days. More strangely still, Lincoln on the first day after he entered office was faced by an insistent call from Fort Sumter for the sending of supplies, the compliance with which brought on the war, and he died six days after Lee surrendered. He wrote the call for the first 75,000 men on April 14 and issued it April 15, 1861. He was shot on April 14 and died April 15, 1865.

Three Events That Fired the North.

The firing on Fort Sumter had the instant effect of electrifying and solidifying the north and of causing Virginia to secede. Up to that time only the seven cotton states had gone out. Virginia passed the secession ordinance on April 17, and Tennessee, Arkansas and North Carolina followed in May.

General Winfield Scott, commander of army at outbreak of war, and General Robert E. Lee, who declined offer to succeed General Scott as commander of United States army.

On April 19 came the Baltimore massacre, practically the first bloodshed of the war. It was the anniversary of the battle of Lexington, and, strangely enough, the troops involved were from Massachusetts. Several soldiers were killed by the mob, and more were wounded. The troops after being attacked fired back and inflicted more damage than they suffered.

The third event that stirred northern excitement was the assassination of Colonel E. Elmer Ellsworth on May 24. At the head of his famous zouaves, Ellsworth was ordered to Alexandria, Va., where one of his first acts was to remove a Confederate flag from the roof of a hotel. The proprietor shot him and was promptly killed in turn by one of Ellsworth's soldiers.

The first battle of the war in which organized troops opposed each other was that at Big Bethel, Va., on June 10. Compared with later engagements it was a mere skirmish. Like the first Bull Run, which started eleven days later, Big Bethel was a Union defeat.

Bull Run awakened the north to the realization that the war was to be no ninety day affair. It was the only considerable battle fought in 1861. The arrival of Johnston's troops from the vicinity of Harper's Ferry saved the day for the Confederates.

The only other engagement of note in the east during the first year was that at Ball's Bluff, another Union defeat, in which Colonel Edward D. Baker was killed.

The Border States.

The stand of the border states was decided this year, and the struggle over them furnished altogether the most important part of the 1861 program. One week after the Baltimore massacre it seemed a certainty that Maryland was lost to the Union. The excitement subsided, however. General Butler took military occupation of the city, and by vigorous measures from Washington the secession sympathizers were defeated.

General Nathaniel Lyon was chiefly instrumental in holding Missouri for the Union. His first decisive act was the taking of Camp Jackson, in the outskirts of St. Louis. Afterward he led the Union forces in several successful battles and finally lost his life at Wilson's Creek in August. Missouri had an influence in keeping Kentucky in line.

West Virginia was naturally pro-Union in sentiment and separated from the Old Dominion soon after the ordinance of secession. General George B. McClellan won his first spurs in driving the Confederates out of the new state.

One other event of first class importance in 1861 was the Mason and Slidell affair, which was distinctly humiliating to the north for the reason that it occasioned a seeming back-down on the part of the Union. From this distance it appears one of the wisest acts Lincoln ever performed.

The Coming of Grant.

On Nov. 7 General Ulysses S. Grant won his first battle. Feb. 6, 1862, he followed this up by the capture of Fort Henry and ten days later electri-

CHANGE IN WOMAN'S LIFE

Made Safe by Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound.

Graniteville, Vt.—"I was passing through the Change of Life and suffered from nervousness and other annoying symptoms, and I can truly say that Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound has proved worth mountains of gold to me, as it restored my health and strength. I never forget to tell my friends what Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound has done for me during this trying period. Complete restoration to health means so much to me that for the sake of other suffering women I am willing to make my trouble public so you may publish this letter."—Mrs. CHAS. BARCLAY, R.F.D., Graniteville, Vt.

No other medicine for woman's ills has received such wide-spread and unqualified endorsement. No other medicine we know of has such a record of cures as has Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound.

For more than 30 years it has been curing woman's ills such as inflammation, ulceration, fibroid tumors, irregularities, periodic pains and nervous prostration, and it is unequalled for carrying women safely through the period of change of life.

Mrs. Pinkham, at Lynn, Mass., invites all sick women to write her for advice. Her advice is free, and always helpful.

CHAPTER IV.

COMMENTS AND REFLECTIONS.

"YOU say you were not blind to surrounding objects, even if they conveyed but little meaning to you," said Coroner Perry. "You must have seen, then, that the room where Miss Cumberland lay contained two small cordial glasses, both still moist with some liqueur."

"I noticed that, yes."

"Some one must have drunk with her?"

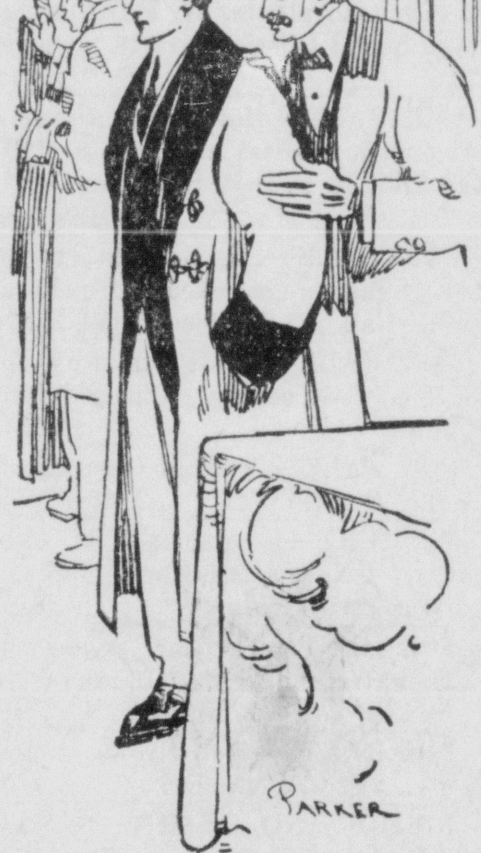

"I cannot contradict you."

"Was Miss Cumberland fond of that sort of thing?"

"She detested liquor of all kinds. She never drank. I never saw a woman so averse to wine."

"I spoke before I thought. I might better have been less emphatic, but the mystery of those glasses had affected me from the first."

"There was a third glass. We found it in the adjoining closet. It had not been used. That third glass has a meaning if only we could find it out. And a small flask of cordial. The latter seems pure enough."

"ONE OF OUR MEN SAW YOU WITH YOUR FINGERS ON HER THROAT."

"I cannot understand it." The phrase had become stereotyped. No other suggested itself to me.

"The problem would be simple enough if it were not for those marks on her neck. You saw those, too, I take it?"

"Yes. Who made them? Who was the man? Do you know, Dr. Perry?" "There were three glasses in those rooms. Only two were drunk from," he answered steadily. "Tomorrow I may be in a position to answer your question. I am not tonight."

Why did I take heart? Not a change, not the flicker of one, had passed over his countenance at my utterance of the word "man." Either his official habit had stood him in wonderful stead or the police had failed so far to see any connection between this murder and the young girl whose footprints for all I knew still lingered on the stairs. Would the morrow reveal the fact that Adelaide's young sister had been with her in the hour of death or would the fates propitiously aid her in preserving this secret?

Thus the hours between 2 and 7 passed, when I fell into a fitful sleep, from which I was rudely awakened by a loud rattle at my door, followed by the entrance of the officer who had walked up and down the corridor all night.

"The wagon is here," said he. "Breakfast will be given you at the station."

To which Hexford, looking over his shoulder, added, "I'm sorry to say that we have here the warrant for your arrest. Can I do anything for you?"

"Warrant!" I burst out. "What do you want of a warrant? It is as a witness you seek to detain me, I presume?"

"No," was his brusque reply. "The charge upon which you are arrested is one of murder. You will have to appear before a magistrate."

"But I am innocent, absolutely innocent," I protested, the perspiration starting from every pore as the full meaning of the charge burst upon me. What I have told you was correct. I myself found her dead!"

Hexford gave me a look.

"Don't talk," he kindly suggested. "Leave that to the lawyers." Then, as the other man turned aside for a moment, he whispered in my ear: "It's no go. One of our men saw you with your fingers on her throat. He had clambered into a pine tree, the shade of the window was up. You had better come quietly. Not a soul believes you innocent."

This, then, was what had doomed me from the start—this and that partly burned letter. I understood now why the kind hearted coroner, who loved my father, had urged me to tell my tale, hoping that I would explain this act and give him some opportunity to indulge in a doubt. And I had failed to respond to the hint he had given me. I had been seen fingering my dead betrothed's throat, and nothing I could now say or do would ever convince people that she was dead before my hands touched her, strangled by another's clutch. One person only in the whole world would know and feel how false this accusation was. And yesterday that one's trust in my guiltlessness would have thrown a ray of light upon the deepest infamy which could befall me. But today there had settled over that once innocent spirit a cloud of too impenetrable a nature for any light to struggle to and fro between us.

Turning to the officer next to me, I put the question which had been burning in my mind for hours:

"Tell me how you came to know there was trouble here. What brought you to this house? There can be nothing wrong in telling me that."

"Well, if you don't know," he began. "I do not," I broke in.

"I guess you'd better wait till the chief has had a word with you."

Where was Carmel, and how was she enduring these awful hours? Had repentance come and with it a desire to own her guilt? Did she think of me and the effect this unlooked for death would have upon my feelings? That I should suffer arrest for her crime could not have entered her mind. I had seen her, but she had not seen me in the dark hall. No intimation of my dubious position or its inevitable consequences had reached her yet. When it did what would she do? I did not know her well enough to tell. The attraction she had felt for me had not been strong enough to lead her to accommodate herself to my wishes and marry me offhand, but it had been strong enough to nerve her arm in whatever altercation she may have had with her jealous minded sister. It was the temper and not the strength of the love which would tell in a strait like this. Would it prove of a generous kind? Should I have to combat her desire to take upon herself the full blame of her deed, with all its shames and penalties, or should I have the still deeper misery of finding her callous to my position and welcoming any chance which diverted suspicion from herself? All communication between us, in spite of our ardent and ungovernable passion, had been so casual and so slight. Looks, a whispered word or so, one furtive clasp in which our hands seemed to grow together, were all I had to go upon as tests of her feeling toward me. Her character I had judged from her face, which was lovely.

What would relieve my doubts? As Hexford drew near me again on our way to the head of the staircase I summoned up courage to ask:

"Have you heard anything from the bill? Has the news of this tragedy been communicated to Miss Cumberland's family, and if so, how are they bearing this affliction?"

His lip curled, and for a minute he hesitated; then something in my aspect or the straightforward look I gave him softened him, and he answered frankly, if coldly:

"Word has gone there, of course, but only the servants are affected by it so far. Miss Cumberland, the younger, is very ill, and the boy—I don't know his name—has not shown up since last evening. He's very dissipated, they say, and may be in any one of the joints in the lower part of the town."

I stopped in dismay, clutching wildly at the railing of the stairs we were descending. I had hardly heard the latter words. All my mind was on what he had said first.

"Miss Carmel Cumberland ill," I stammered, "too ill to be told?"

"I was sufficiently master of myself to put it this way."

"Yes," he rejoined kindly as he urged me down the very stairs I had seen her descend in such a state of mind a few hours before.

"A servant who had been out late heard the fall of some heavy body as she was passing Miss Cumberland's rooms and, rushing in, found Miss Carmel, as she called her, lying on the floor near the open fire. Her face had struck the bars of the grate in falling, and she was badly burned. But that was not all. She was delirious with fever, brought on, they think, by anxiety about her sister, whose name she was constantly repeating. They had a doctor for her, and the whole house was up before ever the word came of what had happened here."

I thanked him with a look. I had no opportunity for more. Half a dozen officers were standing about the front door, and in another moment I was hustled into the conveyance provided and was being driven away from the death haunted spot.

As the day advanced and I began to realize that I, Elwood Ranelagh, easy going man of the world, but with traditions of respectable living on both sides of my house and a list of friends of whom any man might be proud, was in a place of detention on the awful charge of murder I found that my keenest torment arose from the fact that I was shut off from the instant knowledge of what was going on in the house where all my thoughts, my fears and—shall I say it?—latent hopes were centered. To know Carmel ill and not to know how ill; to feel the threatening arm of the law hovering constantly over her head and neither to know the instant of its fall nor be given the least opportunity to divert it!

My examination before the magistrate held one element of comfort. Nothing in its whole tenor went to show that as yet she was in the least suspected of any participation in my so called crime. But the knowledge which came later of how the police first learned of trouble at the clubhouse did not add to this sense of relief, whatever satisfaction it gave my curiosity. A cry of distress had come to them over the telephone, a wild cry in a woman's choked and tremulous voice: "Help at the Whispering Pines! Help!" That was all, or all they revealed to me. In their endeavor to find out whether or not I was present when this call was made I learned the nature of their own suspicions. They believed that Adelaide in some moment of prevision had managed to reach the telephone and send out this message.

It was in a condition of mingled dread and expectation that I opened the paper which was brought me the next morning. Arthur, the good-for-nothing brother, had returned from his wild carouse and had taken affairs in charge with something like spirit and a decent show of repentance for his own shortcomings and the mad taste for liquor which had led him away from home that night. Carmel was still ill and likely to be so for many days to come. Her case was diagnosed as one of brain fever and of a most dangerous type. Doctors and nurses were busy at her bedside, and little hope was held out of her being able to tell soon, if ever, what she knew of her sister's departure from the house on that fatal evening. That her testimony on this point would be invaluable was self evident, for proofs were plenty of her having haunted her sister's rooms all the evening in a condition of more or less delirium. She was alone in the house, and this may have added to her anxieties, all of the servants having gone to the policeman's ball. It was on their return in the early morning hours that she had been discovered lying ill and injured before her sister's fireplace.

One fact was mentioned which set me thinking. The keys of the clubhouse had been found lying on a table in the side hall of the Cumberland mansion—the keys which I have already mentioned as missing from my pocket—an alarming discovery which might have acted as a clue to the suspicious I feared if their presence there had not been explained by the waitress who had cleared the table after dinner. Coming upon these keys lying on the floor beside one of the chairs, she had carried them out into the hall and laid them where they would be more readily seen. She had not recognized the keys, but had taken it for granted that they belonged to Mr. Ranelagh, who had dined at the house that night.

They were my keys, and I have already related how I came to drop them on the floor. Had they but stayed there! Adelaide, or was it Carmel, might not have seen them and been led by some strange if not tragic purpose, incomprehensible to us now and possibly never to find full explanation, to enter the secret and forsaken spot where I later found them, the one dead, the other fleeing in frenzy, but not in such a thoughtless frenzy as to forget these keys or to fail to lock the clubhouse door behind her. That she on her return home should have had sufficient presence of mind to toss these keys down in the same place from which she or her sister had taken them argued well for her clear headedness up to that moment. The fever must have come on later.

The next paragraph detailed a fact startling enough to rouse my deepest interest. Zadok Brown, the Cumberland's coachman, declared that Arthur's cutter and what he called the gray mare had been out that night. They were both in place when he returned to the stable toward early morning, but the signs were unmistakable that both had been out in the snow since he left the stable at about 9. He had locked the stable door at that time, but the key always hung in the kitchen where any one could get it. This was on account of Arthur, who, if he wanted to go out late, sometimes harnessed a horse himself. Zadok judged that he had done so this night, though how the horse happened to be back and in her stall and no Mr. Arthur in the house it would take wiser heads than his to explain.

There was some comment made on this because Arthur had denied using his cutter that night. He declared instead that he had gone out on foot and designated the coachman's tale as all bosh.

As for myself, I felt inclined to believe that the mare had been out, that one or both of the women had harnessed her and that it was by these means they had reached the Whispering Pines. Adelaide was far from strong and never addicted to walking under the most favorable conditions. I could understand now how Carmel had succeeded in returning in safety to her home. She had ridden both ways—a theory which likewise explained how she came to wear a man's derby and possibly a man's overcoat. With her skirts covered by a bearskin she would present a very fair figure of a man to any one who chanced to pass her.

These were my deductions drawn from my own knowledge. Would others who had not my knowledge be in anywise influenced to draw the same? Yet, if they let this point slip, where should I be? Human nature is human all the way through, and I could not help having moments when I asked myself if this young girl were worth the sacrifice I contemplated making for her. She was lovely to look at, amiable and of womanly promise save at those rare and poignant moments when passion would seize her in a gust which drove everything before it. That she had had provocation I did not doubt. Adelaide, for all her virtues was not an easy person to deal with. Upright and perfectly sincere herself, she had no sympathy with or commiseration for any lack of principle or any display of selfishness in others. She was a little cold, a little reserved, a little lacking in spontaneity, though always correct and always generous in her gifts and often in her acts.

MAKING CONCRETE TILE.

Simple and Effective Method of Constructing Molds.

Concrete tiles become harder and stronger with age and may be made as porous as clay tiles; in comparison the clay tile becomes water soaked and disintegrates in the years of service, thus causing broken tiles and a useless drain. The accompanying sketch shows a device for making a six inch tile, and from this explanation any other tile may be constructed.

A box form is built of two boards eighteen inches long and eight inches wide and two boards eighteen inches long and ten inches wide. These are joined together to make a form, the inside measurements being eight by eight inches and eighteen inches high. Fasten these boards together with two hinges at each of three corners, and the fourth corner fasten with two hooks and eyelets. This allows the machine to be folded back from the tile without injury. Now nail in each corner of this box some three cornered strips eighteen inches long, but nail to one side of the board only.

For the core take a six inch stove-pipe twenty-four inches long and inside the same place a six inch board thirty inches long, nailing it securely. The top of this board is cut to make a handle to draw out the core. The bottom is cut down to leave a small three-quarter inch projection or pin, which enters into the holes bored in the pallets, thus centering the core in the form. The pallets are made of any boards larger than the form used for molding the tile, and in the center is bored a three-quarter inch hole to receive the pin on the bottom of the board in the core.

The outside part of the mold is held in position by four iron pins or spikes. Set the casing in the correct position on the pallet and then on each side mark where the pin is to be placed. Bore a hole for the same and arrange it so that it can be easily inserted and removed.

A pallet is prepared for as many tiles as you wish to make each day, and the tiles are left on it for at least forty-eight hours before removing, when they may be piled up and the pallet used again.

In operation the mold is placed in position on the pallet with the core in place. The mortar is placed in the mold and tamped down. Add mortar and tamp down until the mold is filled. Now simply draw out the core and unhook the sides and fold back from the tile, leaving it upon the pallet to dry for forty-eight hours. The tiles thus made are eighteen inches long and are octagonal, which is a convenient shape for laying.

Snowfall in Irrigation.

In districts where the irrigation system is followed it is decidedly desirable that the amount of snowfall in the neighboring mountains during the winter should be known with reasonable accuracy in order that the water available for irrigation may be approximated. These mountainous localities are generally uninhabited and there is no opportunity for making daily observations such as may be done in the more accessible sections. The most satisfactory results have been obtained with what is known as a "snow bin," a cubical box five feet on a side, standing on a frame ground. This bin is fitted with a system of louvers on the inside to prevent the wind from blowing out the snow and to insure a level deposit within.

In operation the mold is placed in position on the pallet with the core in place. The mortar is placed in the mold and tamped down. Add mortar and tamp down until the mold is filled. Now simply draw out the core and unhook the sides and fold back from the tile, leaving it upon the pallet to dry for forty-eight hours. The tiles thus made are eighteen inches long and are octagonal, which is a convenient shape for laying.

Snowfall in Irrigation.

In districts where the irrigation system is followed it is decidedly desirable that the amount of snowfall in the neighboring mountains during the winter should be known with reasonable accuracy in order that the water available for irrigation may be approximated. These mountainous localities are generally uninhabited and there is no opportunity for making daily observations such as may be done in the more accessible sections. The most satisfactory results have been obtained with what is known as a "snow bin," a cubical box five feet on a side, standing on a frame ground. This bin is fitted with a system of louvers on the inside to prevent the wind from blowing out the snow and to insure a level deposit within.

LOCAL FIRM WILL CONTINUE VALUABLE AGENCY

A. J. Pellens of this city have just closed a deal whereby they will continue to be agents for ZEMO—the well known remedy for Eczema, Dandruff, and all diseases of the skin and scalp.

The extraordinary leap that this clean liquid external treatment for skin affections has made into public favor in the last few years proves its wonderful curative properties and makes it indeed a valuable addition to the fine stock of remedial agents carried by the A. J. Pellens Drug Co.

They have a limited supply of samples. One of which will be given free to any skin sufferer who wishes to test the merit of the medicine. A booklet "How To Preserve The Skin" will also be given to those interested.

JUDGE LET HIM GO

Child's Tearful Plea Saves Father From Prison.

Muncie, Ind., May 9.—The pleading of his daughter, nine years old, prevented Milt Pugh, a local peddler, from going to the penitentiary for a term of two to fourteen years. When Pugh was sentenced to prison for selling a rented horse the child burst into tears and pleaded with the court to release her father. On Pugh's promise to make good the loss sustained through the unlawful sale Judge Ellis suspended his sentence.

OHIO GRAFT INQUIRY GOING RIGHT AHEAD

No Lack of Money to Rush Prosecution.

Columbus, O., May 9.—According to a forecast made by Opha Moore, secretary of the Ohio Manufacturers' association, twenty senators and thirty representatives in the Ohio general assembly will be involved in the bribery revelations before the grand jury gets through. Members of this body acting as individuals are responsible for detectives coming here to put an end to the tactics of legislators who have been busy soliciting bribes.

Offers of financial assistance have come from many sources in the state and from Ohioans not now in the state, according to Moore.

"If the present backers of the investigation should withdraw there would be enough money coming from other sources to carry the probe through," he said.

Moore's statement was prompted by the repetition of reports that the grand jury's probe was about over, since it could get no further testimony, as those employing detectives had been halted by other business interests, and as those involved in corruption had combined to prevent further disclosures.

THE HOME FIRE INSURANCE CO.

Of Indianapolis, Having Considerably Over $1,100,000 in Stock Already Subscribed.

LOCAL PEOPLE INTERESTED

Stock is Subscribed For By Prominent Citizens of Jackson County.

A new fire insurance company was organized at Indianapolis January 3. The name of the new company is "The Home Fire Insurance Company of Indianapolis," and it is ultimately to be a million dollar company. The capital stock will be increased from time to time until the amount reaches $1,000,000, with surplus of $1,000,000 which will probably be within the next 60 days, as the promotion of the new company appears to have struck a popular chord with investors throughout the state. The initial success of the company is no doubt largely due to the personality of

JOHN C. BILLHEIMER.

Ex-Auditor of the state, who is president of the Home Company. He has been at the head of the insurance departments as chief deputy and then the Auditor of State for 8 years. No man in Indiana knows the insurance laws, its business, its needs and its opportunities so well as Mr. Billheimer. He is a constructionist of plans, methods, forms and policies.

While this will be a stock company, it will have the cooperative plan.

Every man in Indiana has an equal chance of purchasing this stock.

The original stock is being placed in every county. The amount each party can take is limited. They want the individuals and expect to get in turn their fire insurance business.

The records in the office of the Auditor of State show that the people of Indiana are now paying about $9,000,000 for fire insurance every year, and that of this enormous amount, less than $4,000,000 returns in fire losses to the state. Not only is this money drained from the state of Indiana to the state capitals of other states, but much of it goes to foreign countries. A strong Indiana company ought, therefore, to be of great and lasting benefit to the state itself.

SUCCESS ASSURED.

The large number of prominent men throughout the state who have already become stockholders, insures the success of the new company.

The plan of selling the stock in small blocks and having it fully paid up meets the approval of everybody. By this plan the company will have thousands of customers and boosters. A large amount of stock has been subscribed by local people and in adjoining counties.

Officers, Directors and Advisory Board: John C. Billheimer, Jno. W. Holtzman, Lynn B. Millikan, Indianapolis; A. D. Hurst, Anderson; W. N. Showers, Bloomington; John T. Baute, Pres. U. S. Trust Co., Terre Haute; Dr. D. J. Terhune, Linton; J. M. Dalrymple, Indianapolis; S. C. Dodds, banker, Bloomington; E. B. Thornton, banker, Bedford; L. N. Persinger, Brownstown, and W. W. Cave, banker, French Lick. This number will be increased from the stockholders.

There has been from $60,000 to $100,000 stock taken in each of the counties bordering Jackson county.

Among the stockholders in this county are:

Brownstown—Adam Heller, Chas. F. Robertson, A. J. Brodhecker, Wm. Wacker, H. Stuckwisch, Chris. Stuckwisch, Amelia Stuckwisch, Kate Stuckwisch, A. E. Schneider, J. Henry Schneider, Mrs. Geo. Watch Your Kidneys.

Their action controls your health. Read what Foley Kidney Pills have done for your neighbor. Allen Campbell, 322 S. Morton St., Bloomington, Ind., says: "My kidneys and bladder caused me a great deal of trouble for some time. My back pained me a great deal. There was a dull bearing down pain in my bladder and I felt all out of sorts. Foley Kidney Pills helped me from the start. The backache and pain in my bladder left and my kidney action became normal and regular. Foley Kidney Pills have certainly done wonders for me and I gladly recommend their use." A. J. Pellens.

Five merchandise cars in train number 97, a. g. d. freight train on the B. & O. Southwestern due out of Washington, going west at 9:35 each night, were robbed Saturday night of a large part of their contents. William Wainman, of the B. & O. Southwestern police force, thinks the deed was committed in this city. The train never got out of Washington Saturday night until after 12 o'clock.—Washington Democrat.

Is there anything in all this world that is of more importance to you than good digestion? Food must be eaten to sustain life and must be digested and converted into blood. When the digestion fails the whole body suffers. Chamberlain's Tablets are a rational and reliable cure for indigestion. They increase the flow of bile, purify the blood, strengthen the stomach, and tone up the whole digestive apparatus to a natural and healthy action. For sale by all Dealers.

While playing at his home Monday afternoon Francis, the little son of Mr. and Mrs. Peter Richart fell from a building to the ground, about four feet, and cut an ugly gash on the top of his head.

For soreness of the muscles whether induced by violent exercise or injury, Chamberlain's Liniment is excellent. This liniment is also highly esteemed for the relief it affords in cases of rheumatism. Sold by all Dealers.

Mr. and Mrs. W. H. Kuehn arrived home Monday evening from their wedding trip to Cleveland, Buffalo and other eastern points. They went to Brownstown this morning for future residence.

Now is the time to get rid of your rheumatism. You will find Chamberlain's Liniment wonderfully effective. One application will convince you of its merits. Try it. For sale by all Dealers.

Ward Salmond, of Columbus, well known in this city, suffered a stroke of paralysis Monday afternoon and is in a critical condition. His wife died last week.

J. M. Howell, a popular druggist of Greensburg, Ky., says, "We use Chamberlain's Cough Remedy in our own household and know it is excellent." For sale by all Dealers.

Mrs. Ben Price at the city hospital, is doing very well. She rested comfortably last night and there are now good chances for her recovery.

Sick headache results from a disordered condition of the stomach, and can be cured by the use of Chamberlain's Stomach and Liver Tablets. Try it. For sale by all Dealers.

The Age of Fish.

Until within recent years there had been ascertained no trustworthy way of finding out the age of fish. It has been shown that mere size does not indicate the age. Reibisch, Heinicke, and others have discovered that many of the bones, scales and otoliths of fishes have annual age rings, resembling those in tree trunks, and by means of these Wallace and others have determined the rate of growth of plaice, showing that some specimens attain the age of twenty-five or even as much as twenty-nine years. Age can now be correlated with size and weight, although it appears that the sexes have a different rate of growth.

QUIGLEY HURT.

Struck By An Engine and Ankle Was Broken.

John Quigley, night watchman at the B. & O. and Pennsylvania crossing, suffered a painful injury Monday night. Two trains passed near the crossing. He threw the switch for the northbound train and stepped out of the way, not noticing that the southbound train was approaching the crossing. He was struck on the left leg by the engine and knocked down, his ankle being broken.

He was removed to his home on Jeffersonville avenue opposite the Pennsylvania station, and given medical attention.

Although quite painful the injury is not considered dangerous, but it will be some time before he will be able to walk. His age, he being 61 years old, makes the accident more serious for him.
